We are working on an assignment to make agency creatives aware of Blurb [Real Books. Made By You.]. The campaign calls on agency employees to submit their favorite killed ideas at www.killedideas.com. This will enable the creation of a Blurb book, Best Killed Ideas Volume 1. We need to reach agency creative professionals to get things started – that’s where you come in.

Blurb Operative Role

You will be our ‘boots-on-the ground’ in the city. We’ll give you marketing collateral (moo cards and other items). We want you to go to the local agency hang-outs, meet with your creative/agency friends, and introduce the campaign. There’s nothing underhand here, just an opportunity for creatives to gain some long-overdue recognition for great, previously unpublished work. About time!

The Ideal Candidate

Perhaps you are a freelance creative – either temporarily, or by choice. You have worked in the agency world for a while at a few different shops and know where people go after the pitch is done, to unwind – or to celebrate the win. This is NOT a 9-to-5 gig, you won’t be making PowerPoint decks and if you aren’t a Mac user well versed in InDesign (or at least knowing what it is) then we doubt this is for you.

There are two parts to the project – introducing creatives to the campaign (Jan/Feb), and making them aware of Killed Ideas Vol. 1 once it's available (March-April). We need one person to work across both stages.

You Need To...

- Be dialed-in to the local agency community, associations, and upcoming conferences/expos within your market...
- Have an EXCELLENT local network of contacts in the agency & creative sphere
- Be willing to reach beyond your existing network – see this as an opportunity to make some new connections!
- Be outgoing, personable and a good networker
- Be self-motivated, with a 'can-do' attitude; able to work independently
- Live locally, have a flexible schedule and be able to drive to and from networking events
- Be computer/Internet literate, with printer and high-speed Internet access
- Have good communication and reporting skills, and be able to participate in weekly team conference calls

Ammo Will Provide

- Guidance on strategy, program goals, reporting tools, guerilla-style collateral and marketing materials
- Seeding of the idea via Facebook, blogger outreach, LinkedIn and our own network of contacts

Time And Money

Compensation to be discussed. Contract role, 50% up front, 50% on completion of the second stage.

This is a part-time role for 4-6 weeks for Jan/Feb; same again in April.

Interested? – please send us a resume, cover letter and a link to your portfolio. Make sure to tell us why you are just the most connected creative there is, bar none.

Please, no phone calls and no recruiters.
